Circulated to 108,000 homes and businesses by Hackney Council

Issue 441 17 December 2018

We wish it could be Christmas every day: hundreds of residents living on the Woodberry Down estate attended the annual Winterfest party on 12 December

IT'S beginning to look a lot like Christmas – especially on the Woodberry Down estate, where hundreds of residents donned their festive finery to attend the annual Winterfest.

The Redmond Community Centre played host to a winter market, with free wreathmaking and decorations workshops, face painting and stalls from local craft groups, as well as a Christmas feast. Deputy Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Kam Adams, said: "This event is really our opportunity to say thank you.

TOY GIFT APPE

HE borough is staging its own 'Toy Story' this Christmas with an appeal to families to give outgrown and unwanted toys to Hackney's Toy Gift Appeal.

The Council, in partnership with Forest Recycling Project, will run pre-loved toy collections at seven Hackney venues between 3 and 23 January next year.

Many fortunate children will receive new toys this Christmas, replacing old ones that have been overlooked, outgrown, and no longer played with.

The Council is asking residents to donate any unwanted toys, which are still in good condition, to the Toy Gift Appeal. Last year, the scheme collected over 1,500 toys worth more than £5,500. Toys were donated to Homerton Hope charity, for children receiving treatment at the hospital; the London Community Rehabilitation Company, for young parents on probation; and Hackney's children's centres.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability, and Community Services, said: "Christmas is a special time for children, but sadly also a time when concern for the environment is at the back of many people's minds. This can lead to toys being needlessly thrown away, while other children go without.

"It is estimated that 13 million toys in good condition and 8.5 million new toys end up as waste each year. This has big implications for our environment, due to plastic waste and greenhouse gas emissions.

"Christmas is a time of giving, but those things we give don't have to be new. Santa has been asked to give pre-loved toys to Hackney's Toy Gift Appeal this year."

NE of the first residents to move into new Council homes in Victoria Park says a weight has been lifted from her shoulders by a move into genuinely affordable housing.

Margaret Bibby and her one year-old son Prince were among families moving into 15 new genuinely affordable Council homes for social rent at King Edward's Road, transforming land previously owned by a housing association that had been derelict for nearly 20 years.

Margaret lived in Dalston for eight years before difficult family circumstances required her and her son to move.

She said: "It's a great move and a new start for me; it's like a weight has been taken off my shoulders. A roof over your head is the most important thing and everyone here is so excited. I hope they are as happy as I am.'

Their new neighbours include Katia Alloache and her family, who have moved from a flat in De Beauvoir, where they had lived since 2006, to a new five-bedroom family Council home.

Her son Yassine, 18, said: "It's been a big change, but this home is so much better for the family and there is a lot more space. We've met our neighbours here and everyone is really happy."

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, visited the families and personally welcomed them to their new homes.

He said: "I'm proud Hackney is building council housing, but it was truly humbling to hear first-hand how these new modern homes we are developing are transforming the lives of families who have been

A roof over your head is the most important thing and everyone here is so excited. I hope they are as happy as I am in desperate need for a genuinely affordable place to call home.

"Completing these spacious, family-sized properties is just the latest step in our mission to build thousands more across the borough over the next few years, providing a permanent home to some of the 13,000 people on our waiting list.

"Because we're building ourselves, we can guarantee that local people like Margaret and her son will get first dibs on new homes and they won't be sold to buy-to-let investors or subject to the whims of a developer's viability test."

Through its model of funding and building homes itself, rather than selling land to developers, the Council will build nearly 2,000 new homes, three schools and a new leisure centre by 2022 - with over half of the new housing for social rent and shared ownership.

Homes at King Edward's Road have been designed to fit in with the surrounding Victorian architecture, with townhouses and a landmark building built around a new communal courtyard, as well as improved public spaces, swift boxes and walking routes around the site.

The development, at the junction with Tryon Crescent, also includes 17 homes for outright sale to help pay for the new Council housing in the absence of any Government funding.

Residents celebrate the start of the festive season with the lighting of the menorah and the Christmas lights illumination

OVER 350 people celebrated the start of the holiday season with the annual festive light switch-on at Hackney Town Hall on 2 December. Rabbi Roni Tabik was joined by Simon Marks' school choir to celebrate the Jewish festival of Hanukkah by lighting the menorah (a nine-branched candelabrum) and singing traditional songs. Steel pan band Panatonic played pop hits and festive favourites, and local carnival group Tropical Isles entertained the crowd before the Christmas lights were switched on by The Speaker and characters from the Empire's panto, 'Aladdin'.

Safer school streets

NEW school crossing patrol officer has been appointed to help children at St John the Baptist School, N1, cross the road to school.

New officer, Sandy, started work at the Pitfield Street site following concerns raised by parents about road safety in the area, after a young boy was injured by a car last year.

The Council also repainted the nearby zebra crossing and, in an extra boost for road safety at the school, its School Street – the first of the Council's pioneering trial – has been made permanent.

The trial began in June last year and aims to promote walking and cycling to school by banning traffic outside at opening and closing times.

There are four other School Street trials currently in operation in Hackney: at Gayhurst, Millfields, Tyssen and London Fields primary schools. The Council is committed to implementing another 12 School Streets by 2022.

Cllr Feryal Demirci,
Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "We want to make it as easy as possible for children to walk or cycle to school so we're really happy to welcome Sandy to her new role, where she'll help children cross busy Pitfield Street at opening closing times.

"Making St John the Baptist's School Street permanent also makes for a safer and more pleasant environment for everyone walking to school."

News in brief

Free Xmas lunch for older residents and those in need

ALMOST a million older people say they feel lonelier at Christmas, while half a million say they sometimes go a week without seeing a single other person. One local charity, however, is on a mission to make this Christmas different for Hackney residents.

On 25 December, AKORN is holding a free Christmas lunch for the elderly, or anyone who is struggling to provide a proper meal for themselves or their family.

From 12noon till 4pm on Christmas Day, the Ark Suite on Cricketfield Road, E5, will be full of festive cheer, friendly faces and, of course, full stomachs.

The meal is completely free, but the charity is asking that anyone planning to attend should register in advance, to help them prepare the right amount of food.

If you want to join the party, call: 07554 613 105; or email: akorn.clapton@btconnect.com

We gotta have faith, faith, faith

Pastor Junior Spence, of Faith City Church in Hackney, collects the Inspiring Youth award

TWO faith and belief groups from Hackney have been recognised for the contribution they make to their communities in the annual Faith and Belief Forum Community Awards. The awards, which were hosted at the Royal Society of Medicine earlier this month, recognised London's 'unsung heroes' and the work they do to bring people from different backgrounds together. The Muslim Jewish Forum of Stamford Hill were awarded in the Interfaith Relations category for their ground-breaking work to bring Muslims and Jews together. Pray4Youth was awarded in the Inspiring Youth category for their work as an inter-denominational Christian prayer and pastoral initiative, leading a coordinated church response to the increase in knife and violent crime among young people in London.

Stay safe over the festive break

PEOPLE out celebrating the festive season will spot extra police officers and Council enforcement officers at night. The officers will be on-hand to make sure people stay safe over Christmas and New Year, when Dalston and Shoreditch are at their busiest.

A dedicated team of three sergeants and 48 police constables will be working to provide a uniformed presence overnight during the festive period, and extra enforcement officers from the Council will be on duty. The Council's CCTV van will also be parked up in Shoreditch and will act as a mobile police station on New Year's Eve.

volunteers from the Council and its partner organisations take to the streets in a nationwide effort to try and capture the level of rough sleeping in the UK.

This year, more than 40 people took part in the annual count in Hackney. Setting off at midnight on 29 November, they were split into groups and given maps that highlighted areas of the borough where people were known to bed down for the night.

There are strict definitions of what constitutes a rough sleeper for the purpose of the count: people must be sleeping, about to bed down, or bedded down on the street, in doorways, parks, tents, bus shelters, cars, and other places not designed for habitation.

Homeless people who are resident in hostels or shelters on the night in question are not counted.

Specially trained outreach workers were present to speak to rough sleepers and offer help. Some emergency beds, with a car to come and collect people in need, were also available.

The Council's homelessness team manager, Prakash Pandit, who took part in the count, said: "There are many complex reasons that people are sleeping on the streets, and for us to help it needs to be a steady process to gain people's trust. It takes time.

"Even if initially people are not engaging with us, we identify why they are not,

We have a genuine commitment to doing all we can to eradicate rough sleeping in Hackney by addressing health needs that people might have for instance, so eventually we can ensure they have the support they need in place."

For example, rough sleepers can visit the Greenhouse on Tudor Road, E9. This is a walk-in centre for single homeless people provided and run jointly by the Council, NHS, and Thames Reach.

The centre offers health care services, showers, toiletries, clothing, food, mail collection and housing and welfare advice.

Unfortunately, the housing crisis is deepening.
According to the latest figures, published in January, published in January, 4,751 people are thought to be sleeping rough on any one night in the UK.

Cllr Rebecca Rennison, Cabinet Member for Finance and Housing Needs, said: "There is no need for people in this country to be sleeping on the street.

"The fact that so many are shows the complex nature of this issue, exacerbated by eight years of austerity, which has seen drastic cuts to health, social care and housing.

"We have a genuine commitment to to eradicate rough sleeping in Hackney by providing dedicated hostel beds and a rough sleeper pathway.

However, this is a national problem, which requires national solutions. We hope that when making decisions, the Government remembers the thousands of people on the streets facing a Christmas without a home this winter."

If you see someone sleeping rough the best way to help is to contact StreetLink. The details you provide to the service are sent to the Council and outreach services to help them find the individual and connect them to support.

A fairer deal for private renters

ONE of the main causes of homelessness in the borough is evictions from privately rented homes, usually because a landlord wants to sell the property or increase rent. Housing benefit no longer keeps pace with rents in the private sector so those evicted often struggle to find an alternative place to live. That's despite 38 per cent of homeless families in the borough having at least one person in work. Through its #BetterRenting campaign, the Council is trying to get a fairer deal for the 30,000 households in Hackney who rent privately.

Of homeless families in Hackney have at least one person in work

The need for social housing

MORE than 13,000

households are on the housing waiting list in Hackney at present. Around 10,000 Council homes have been sold in the borough since 1979, under the right-to-buy scheme, with councils offered only one-third of the cost of replacement homes. The Council's approach is to sell some homes outright to help pay for genuinely affordable new Council homes and public facilities that it is building. Nearly two-thirds of the new homes delivered directly by the Council since 2010 have been available at genuinely affordable social rent and shared ownership. The Council now plans to build nearly 2,000 new homes itself between 2018-2022, with more than half for genuinely affordable social rent and shared ownership

The hidden homeless: thousands living in b&bs and 'sofa surfing'

ROUGH sleepers are only the tip of the iceberg. There are thousands of 'hidden homeless', which includes people living in bed and breakfasts, or 'sofa surfing' with friends and family.

The London Assembly estimates that in the capital as many as 12,500 people each night are part of this.
Children and young people are particularly affected by hidden homelessness, with new analysis from Shelter finding that one in every 103 children in Britain is homeless.

Liam* spent a year sofa surfing, and though his situation was precarious, he was reluctant to seek help.
He said: "I was wearing the same clothes for a week; waking up on someone else's sofa and having to leave straight away because I'd outstayed my welcome."

Liam visited the job centre and was referred to the No First Night Out project, which aims to help people who are at risk of sleeping rough.
It has helped him secure accommodation and a new work placement.

VER 200 parents and friends of the borough's young sporting stars descended on Hackney Town Hall earlier this month to celebrate their achievements at the annual Hackney Youth Sports Awards.

They were joined by special guests, Hackneyborn diver Noah Williams and London City Royals basketball player, Orlan Jackman, who presented awards alongside Cllr Anntoinette Bramble, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, and The Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Clare Potter.

Noah, a previous winner of a Hackney Sports Award, won silver medals in the synchronised platform event at the European Championships and Commonwealth Games, with Orlan also representing Great Britain at the 2018 Commonwealth Games.

Fourteen awards were given out this year, recognising the sporting achievements of Hackney's sports people, teams, coaches and schools.

The Sportsperson of the Year award was won by Spurs goalkeeper Eddie Carrington in the under-16 category, while sprint kayak star Noah Dembele won the under-25 award.

Cycle Club (CC)
Hackney won Sports Club of the Year. Their head coach, Keir Apperley, said: "I'm hugely proud of our team efforts over the years; that's assistant manager Neil Irons, all of the coaching staff and the young riders since starting out.

"To receive the Hackney Sports Club of the Year award is a great way to recognise CC Hackney's ongoing durability and commitment to the community. It means a lot to us."

Fionnuala Duhaney-Keown, who has encouraged over 200 girls from her school, Clapton

Girls' Academy, to take part in her basketball programme, was named Coach of the Year.

She said: "Hackney has such a wealth of young people from different backgrounds – it makes coaching them a real learning experience for everyone involved, especially the coach.

"I have been lucky to be able to work with the young people of Hackney for a number of years now and I owe them a massive thank you for their part in my development as a coach and winning this prestigious award."

The Team of the Year award went to AFC Stoke Newington Girls under-14 football team.

Head coach, Ian Bruce, said: "We train really hard so it's great to see our efforts paid off and to collect it as a team makes us feel ecstatic."

The Inclusion award, which is sponsored by GLL, went to Hackney Youth Games para teams.

Kamil Hadyrich, part of the Stormont House School team, said: "It feels good to win an award as part of a school team and it makes us proud and want to carry on.

"Normally there's only one winner, so for the whole team to be recognised is amazing."

Young Hackney Primary School Cycling winners,

Millfields School, were also there to collect their award. Paul Marsden, from Millfields Cycle League, said: "The young people were so excited to be here to collect their award formally and seeing the smiles on their faces is so rewarding."

Bev Dickinson, from Shacklewell School, which won the Primary Schools Participation award, said: "The young people were so excited to be nominated TELL you what. Eat curry and rice for supper every night and you will live to a very old age," says Mavis Jackson. She should know.

The Clapton resident turned 100 last month, and she didn't celebrate quietly: "We've had four parties," she says. "My church friends threw a party for me, I had a birthday party at home when some of the Hackney Mobile Library staff joined us, then a big family party, and a party with all my old friends."

Mavis Jackson, you see, is no ordinary lady. She was born in 1918, just nine days after the end of the First World War, to a Scottish father and Burmese mother.

It was in Burma that she met her husband Horace, but in 1957 the couple decided to brave the long journey to Britain in order to give their young family a better life.

"It was terrible," she says of the crossing.
"Thirty-one days aboard a ship, with eight children, all of whom were sea sick."

Eventually, the ship docked at Liverpool and Mavis took the children – aged between 18 months and 15 years – to Hackney, where Horace was waiting for them, having travelled ahead to find work and a home for the family.

Mavis recalls: "Our neighbours were immigrants from all over the world and most had arrived at the same time, so everyone was very welcoming."

Together she and Horace raised a total of 14 children: "11 of our own plus three step children," Mavis says, adding: "But honestly, when you have a large family, the big ones look after the little ones."

Undaunted by the task of raising so many kids, she decided to also sign up as a governor at her children's school, Cardinal Pole Catholic School, eventually serving in the role for 13 years. It was there that she spotted a line dancing class.

Mavis says: "It looked like fun, so I asked the teacher to come to our church and teach us. When he couldn't come anymore, I started taking the class."

Her children chip in to explain that she can also add cake baker and dress maker to her CV. "Yes, I made all my children's clothes myself," says Mavis.

Her daughter Gerry adds: "All the family are so proud of Mavis. She's also a great speaker at functions, one amazing cook and the best mum, nana and great nana in the world."

Mavis now has 47 great grandchildren and 18 grandchildren, all of whom, she says: "Are a blessing. It's a blessing that I've lived to see them."

She has worked hard for them too. Three of her grandchildren live in Germany and so, in her 70s, Mavis decided to learn German to be able to write to them. She took evening classes and, in 1994, passed an O Level.

"It's never too late to learn," she says adamantly. "I tell all my children that. I'm still learning today."

Accordingly, at a time most people are slowing down, Mavis also spent her 70s learning to play the classical guitar and, in order to get to her evening classes faster, taking driving lessons and passing at the age of 77.

Her husband Horace passed away in 2001, but: "My faith has always kept me going," says Mavis, who is Roman Catholic.

What wisdom would she like to pass on to readers, now that she has reached the milestone of 100?

"If you want to do something, do it," she says, without missing a beat. "If you don't succeed, at least you will know that you tried. I have always lived that way."

It is a philosophy that has certainly worked for Mavis Jackson.

Borders

Until 22 Dec, Arcola Theatre, Dalston, E8 3DL

IF you don't know Henry Naylor by name, you will know his work: formerly half of satirist duo Parsons & Naylor, he was also lead writer on Spitting Image.

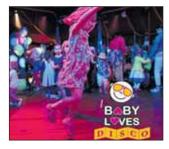

His new play at the Arcola is every bit as political, but takes a far simpler approach. Gone are the puppets and their enormous noses. What's left is barely any set at all, just two characters on a collision course towards each other.

'Borders', which won the Scotsman Fringe First Award, tells the story of a celebrated war photographer, whose audience with Osama bin Laden prior to 9/11 made him a celebrity in his own right. His counterpart on stage is a young Syrian woman, six months pregnant, on an aging fishing boat in the Mediterranean, sinking fast under the weight of refugees. Their interweaving monologues are crisp, moving and captivating, creating a haunting and occasionally hilarious commentary on one of the biggest crises facing us today.

'Borders' runs till 22 December at the Arcola Theatre. Tickets start at £10. For more information and to book, visit: www. arcolatheatre.com education

Pupils from Holy Trinity Primary School were inspired by nature at Dalston Eastern Curve Garden to develop a new picture book

O YOU know how many legs a spider has or how to grow a courgette from seed?

Children from Holy Trinity Primary School, E8, learnt the answers in this year's 'Inspired by Nature' programme at the Dalston Eastern Curve Garden.

The pupils helped develop a new picture book, 'A Little Seed Grows in Dalston', which has been brought to life in an exhibition at Dalston CLR James Library.

Every year the school's Year 1 pupils are immersed in the garden's environment, through

Discovering the... environment of the garden is an opportunity for the children to develop a love and respect for nature exploration, gardening and art activities. This year, the children also worked with arts educator Laura Halliwell on the creation of their book. In the book, the children's words are illustrated by their beautiful drawings, inspired by the work of Eric Carle, author of many much-loved children's books, including 'The Very Hungry Caterpillar'.

Marie Murray, who has developed the 'Inspired by Nature' programme at the garden, said: "Discovering the plants, mini beasts and environment of the garden is an opportunity for the children to develop a love and respect for nature.

"Planting their first seeds to then see them grow and become part of the landscape of the Curve Garden offers them a chance to nurture a precious green space right here in their own busy, built up neighbourhood.

"Dalston CLR James Library is such a brilliant community asset, so we've loved being able to bring a little bit of the Curve Garden across the road into that space."

News in brief

Actor Helena Bonham Carter visits The Urswick School

HARRY Potter star, Helena Bonham Carter, visited The Urswick School, E9, last month to show her support for the charity Broaden Out Their Horizons.

The actor is patron of the educational charity, which organises, and funds, reciprocal exchange visits between schools in the UK and their global partners. Earlier this year, 10 students from The Urswick visited a secondary school in South Africa. The pupils fed back to the audience about their time abroad on 27 November. Helena said: "It was my honour and pleasure to listen to such confident and charismatic young people sharing their experiences."

A group of South African students are set to visit the school in February.

Parliamentary debate in N16

PUPILS from the Olive School, N16, experienced politics first-hand as they brought Westminster into school for 'Parliament Week'.

The main assembly hall was redecorated to match the setting of the House of Commons before debate ensued. Year 5 pupils debated whether it is more important to put money into education or housing.

Students from Jubilee Primary School and Simon Marks Jewish Primary School, both N16, also took part. Norma Hewins, Headteacher of Jubilee, said: "The debate gave voice to many children and it was great to hear them speaking passionately and eloquently about those subjects which will affect them in the future."

New City College celebrates new SEND facilities

STUDENTS from New City College (NCC) celebrated the opening of their newly redeveloped teaching and learning accommodation at the college's Hackney and Redbridge campuses.

A £350,000 investment by the college has redeveloped and equipped the accommodation with the highest spec teaching facilities for students with special educational needs and disabilities (SEND).

New facilities in the upgraded SEND learning accommodation includes training flats, a training cafe, new sensory rooms (both light and dark), wet rooms, break out and quiet spaces and more spacious classrooms all equipped with computers.

Speaking at the launch,

Narzny Khan, Deputy Principal and Director of SEND, NCC, said: "This redevelopment offers our students the very highest facilities, which have been designed around their educational and social needs. It also gives their families the reassurance that their children will be able to thrive."

All your green questions answered

Q: I want to have a more eco friendly Christmas this year, every year I end up throwing away a lot of wrapping paper, I want to know what recyclable alternatives there are?

A: At Christmas, Londoners use around 38,000 tonnes of paper and card. A large proportion of the paper and card used at Christmas is metallic or covered in glitter. Glitter can't be processed in recycling plants as it clogs up the equipment and stops everything working. This means that thousands of tonnes of paper and card are thrown away, which is bad for the environment. You can buy wrapping fabrics or use left over scraps of fabric to wrap your presents. You can also buy recyclable paper such as the brown paper used for wrapping parcels. You can make fun designs on this type of paper by making a stamp out of a potato! Don't forget that ribbons and plastic tape are also not recyclable, so use paper tape or biodegradable twine.

To ask the Genie a question, email: recycling @hackney.gov.uk, or write to: Green Genie, Recycling, 4th floor, Hackney Service Centre, 1 Hillman Street, E8 1DY. For more information on recycling in the borough call: 020 8356 6688, or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/recycling

■HE Council is asking residents to do all they can to reduce waste and maximise recycling during the holiday season and get to know their waste collection dates and recycling options.

No waste and recycling collections will be provided on Christmas Day, Boxing Day and New Year's Day. This means during the Christmas week, residents who have their collection on Monday and Tuesday will have their collection a day earlier, and for the rest of the borough it will be one day late. During the New Year week all collections, except New Year's Eve, will be one day later than normal (see page 18 for more info).

Real Christmas trees can be recycled and turned

This year, I am encouraging residents to reduce their waste over the Christmas period and recycle as much as possible into compost. Residents who live on street level can have their trees collected outside their properties. between 2 to 11 January, on their rubbish and recycling day. The tree needs to be outside, without decorations, by 7am. Residents who live in a block or estate should leave their trees next to their communal bins, and not inside them.

Real Christmas trees can also be taken to Millfields Depot, Millfields Road. E5 0AR, from 8am-3pm, Mondays to Fridays, or 8am-12pm, on Saturdays before 31 January. Normal garden waste collections will be suspended for this period, with the standard service resuming on 14 January.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy,

Sustainability, and Community Services, said: "Working around the clock, our waste and recycling crews complete over 8million collections a year. It is thanks to them that the service continues over the busy festive period.

"Christmas is a time for giving, but it also produces a phenomenal amount of waste. In the UK alone, more than 300,000 tonnes of card packaging is thrown away over the festive period.

"This year, I am encouraging Hackney's residents to reduce their waste over the Christmas period and recycle as much as possible, which will make the lives of our collection crews easier and reduce our environmental impact in a world of dwindling resources."

Clean air campaign launched by New City College, Hackney campus, students

A GROUP of teenagers from New City College, in Hoxton, have launched a clean air campaign, following concerns about high levels of pollution around their college.

The students are part of My World My Home, a new project between Friends of the Earth and National Union of Students, which is training young people to be the next generation of environmental leaders.

Group member and Student Association's Women's Officer, Elif Arsin Celik, said: "I think air pollution is really important because it's something that is affecting people's lives.

Cllr Feryal Demirci,

Deputy Mayor of Hackney, supported the campaign. She told students what the Council is doing locally, discussed ideas on how to tackle air pollution and offered to come back to the college to talk more about this important issue.

She said: "Improving air quality in Hackney and London is a key priority of mine and an area I am really passionate about.

"It was great to talk to students about the action we are taking here."

My World My Home is a part of Our Bright Future, a programme of 31 projects across the UK funded by the Big Lottery Fund. Each project has received around £1million of funding.

N the run up to this year's World AIDS Day, on 1 December, a series of events took place across Hackney to raise awareness of HIV and testing for the virus.

A flag marking World AIDS Day was displayed for one week at the Council's Service Centre, delivered by east London-based charity Positive East.

The charity, which has been on the forefront of HIV service and care for over 25 years, supports people from point of HIV diagnoses to longer term care.

Positive East also organised an annual Red Run fundraising race in Victoria Park on 1 December to mark the 30th anniversary of World AIDS Day. The event saw nearly 2,000 people attend, raising over £103,000 for HIV support services.

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, took part in the 10k run. He said: "I was very proud to take part in one of the biggest fundraising events for HIV organisations. There is a huge drive to raise awareness of HIV, and in Hackney we are providing services to make it easier to get tested.

"However, there is still too much stigma associated with the virus and taking a test. Stigma also continues to affect the lives of people living with HIV. Both can have an impact on our work to reduce transmission.

"We continue to champion the U = Ucampaign, which seeks to ensure that everyone knows that someone living with HIV, and on effective treatment, cannot pass on the virus; and why we urge the Government and NHS England to commit to making PrEP (Pre-Exposure Prophylaxis, a medicine taken by people at high risk for HIV to lower their chances of getting infected) fully available to those that need it."

There were free instant HIV tests available at Dalston Superstore, in Kingsland High Street, and Hackney Service Centre, offered by Homerton Sexual Health Services.

Mayor Glanville and Deputy Mayor, Cllr Feryal Demirci, visited the stall at the Service Centre to encourage residents to check their HIV status.

Cllr Demirci said: "There have been improvements in overall testing rates and a reduction in the number of people diagnosed with HIV this year, but there is still a high proportion of people who are diagnosed at a late stage of infection – over 40 per cent – which has remained high for the past five years.

"Our sexual health services in City and Hackney offer free HIV testing in a range of options to suit individual needs and we have seen a record number of free HIV home testing kits being ordered since the start of the year."

New projects to launch for children and adolescent mental health services

WORK to support the mental health needs of children and young people across City and Hackney is set to continue with a string of new projects from an alliance of local authorities, health and care organisations.

The work of the children and adolescent mental health services (CAMHS) alliance, which launched in 2015, has already helped to provide mental health support to 2,285 local children and young people as part of a series of projects to transform local services over the next five years.

CAMHS launched the 'Wellbeing and Mental Health in Schools Project' in September, which has seen clinicians working with 39 local schools to provide specialist support and training to staff and teachers.

Other projects set to launch in April next year include: extending the children and young people mental health crisis service at Homerton hospital to cover late evenings and weekends; more mental health support for LGBT children and young people; the introduction of online counselling with a new app; and additional support for autistic young adults.

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food For Life Programme works with members of the community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge. Galletes are savoury pancakes usually made from buckwheat flour. They're also called Breton galletes as the dish originated in Brittany, France, where the traditional fillings are ham and cheese. You can fill them with whatever savoury filling takes your fancy. Below is one suggestion that makes these a complete meal. These galletes are excellent as a quick and easy mid-winter meal. Buckwheat is a seed not a cereal grain, which means it is also gluten-free and suitable for anyone who avoids wheat. Buckwheat is a good source of magnesium and is high in protein.

Savoury pancakes (galletes)

Serves 4 as a main dish

Preparation time 10-15 mins

Ingredients

For the pancake:

- 150g buckwheat flour (you can also use plain flour)
- •2 medium eggs, lightly beaten
- 250ml whole milk
- 1 tbsp butter
- Pinch of salt
- 100ml water • Extra butter or oil for cooking

Filling Suggestion:

- 2 handfuls of greens of your choice (we used savoy cabbage)
- •8 mushrooms
- 2 cloves of garlic
- 1 medium tomato
- 50g feta cheese
- Chilli flakes
- 4 eggs

Method

- Preheat the oven to 110°C
- For the pancakes: Sift the flour and a large pinch of salt into a bowl; make a well in the centre. With a wooden spoon, gradually beat in the egg and 100ml water to make a smooth batter. Stir in the milk. Cover and chill in the fridge – the longer the better (up to 3 hours). Meanwhile prepare the fillings of your choice

- Heat a medium, non-stick frying pan over a medium heat, add a teaspoon of olive oil or butter to the pan. Pour in a small ladleful of batter and swirl around until the base of the pan is covered. Cook for 1 minute until set, then turn over with a palette knife. Cook for 1 minute, then transfer to the oven while you cook the rest, oiling the pan for every other pancake
- For the filling: Shred the cabbage, finely slice the garlic and slice the mushrooms and tomatoes. Add the cabbage to a medium pan with 1 tablespoon olive oil. Cook lightly until the cabbage starts to soften. Add the mushrooms and cook for 3-5 minutes until starting to brown, then add the garlic and tomato and allow to sauté for another 5 minutes. Meanwhile, lightly oil a frying pan and set over a high heat. Fry the eggs in batches. Assemble the pancakes by spooning the vegetable filling in to the middle of each one and topping with a fried egg. Sprinkle with chilli flakes and crumbled feta cheese to serve

Have your say on shaping the future of transport in Hackney

THE deadline has been extended for residents to have their say on the Council's Local Implementation Plan (LIP) for transport.

The plan sets out how the Council will deliver the Mayor of London's Transport Strategy up to the year 2041, and sets out transport initiatives investments for the next three years.

The LIP is divided into 10 sections, which cover proposals on how the Council will respond to the environmental challenges confronting an inner London borough and proactively plan for the rapid economic and population growth that it is undergoing.

The transport initiatives and investments are a starting point for a boroughwide engagement exercise next year to find out what Hackney's residents, workers and visitors would like to see improved.

Cllr Ferval Demirci, Deputy Mayor of Hackney, said: "All London boroughs are required to prepare a LIP outlining their proposals to implement the Mayor of London's Transport Strategy locally.

"Hackney's LIP demonstrates our borough's priority investment in 'Healthy Streets', which will enable 80 per cent of all journeys in London to be made by sustainable modes such as walking, cycling and public transport by 2041."

To have your say, visit: consultation.hackney.gov. uk/street scene/lip by 6 January.

Hard copies are available at the Hackney Service Centre and at libraries, or by phone request on: 020 8356 2897.

ACKNEY
Archives takes another festive look at how Gibson's studio captured Christmas celebrations in and around the borough.

The aprons, flares and skinny ties might have gone, but some party essentials stay the same: decorations, music and a drink of something refreshing!

Get in touch with Hackney Archives if you recognise any of these party goers. Staff at Hackney Archives would also love to know the identity of the factory which has been so comprehensively decorated (other photos show the entire factory ceiling covered in decorations). The Metal Box Co has been suggested but staff haven't been able to confirm this yet.

Hackney Archives, based in Dalston, is carrying out a two-year project to digitise images from Gibson's studio so that they can be shared with local people at events around the borough and online.

Part of the project involves interviewing people who appear in the photos so that their stories can be preserved as part of the history of Hackney.

More photos from RA Gibson's studio are on display at Hackney Museum and at: flickr.com/ photos/hackney_archives

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2018.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards - see map below.

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2018. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, e-mail: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 2212. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Clir Clare Potter.
